Description: Bullethead was a member of the Droid Gotra who provided security for the Twins, a pair of Hutt crime lords, alongside Arges in their Hutt Palace on the planet Nal Hutta. During or after 11 ABY, the Mandalorian mercenary Din Djarin and his son, Din Grogu, fought Bullethead and Arges in order to reach the Hutts after they had unsuccessfully tried to execute Djarin.

During the battle, Grogu managed to damage Arges' wiring enough to cause it to unintentionally shoot Bullethead with a blaster. This provided Djarin an opportunity to activate several grenades on Bullethead's belt, which then detonated and destroyed the droid.

Biography

Silent guardian

Bullethead was a gigantic member of the Droid Gotra who was among the forces hired to provide security for the Hutt crime lords known as the Twins in the Hutt Palace on the planet Nal Hutta during the reign of the New Republic. During or after 11 ABY, Bullethead guarded the doorway to the palace's throneroom alongside the similarly scaled droid Arges and both were knelt, still and silent, to the sides of the throneroom doorway when the Mandalorian mercenary Din Djarin and his son Din Grogue arrived for an audience with the Hutts to discuss him bringing their nephew Rotta back to them safely.

After Djarin elected not to honor his agreement with the Hutts, he was later brought back before them as a prisoner by the bounty hunter Embo, who marched the Mandalorian past Bullethead and Arges into the throneroom in binders. Once again, the droids did not move or acknowledge the arrivals. After Djarin escaped from an attempted execution by the Twins, the mercenary returned to the throne room's entryway a third and final time, having fought through many other members of the Droid Gotra with Grogue to get there. This time, Bullethead and Arges did acknowledge the mercenary and his son, standing to do battle.

During the fight, Bullethead made use of grenades stored on its belt and a club while Arges fired with a blaster; however, Grogue managed to climb inside Arges and began severing the droid's circuitry. This meant that as Djarin and Bullethead battled, Arges' aim was severely impacted, causing the droid to miss Djarin multiple times and eventually leading to one of the bolts hitting Bullethead and bringing the droid to its knees.

This distraction gave Djarin time to rush over to Bullethead and activate the remaining grenades on the droid's belt. Bullethead had time only to lift one of the flashing devices up to look at before they detonated and destroyed the droid. Djarin and Grogue then defeated Arges as well and went on to aid Rotta in besting the Twins and causing their deaths, after which New Republic forces destroyed the entire palace where Bullethead had fallen.

Characteristics

Bullethead was a large bipedal, gray-plated droid with four arms and red sensors in a tapered, pointed head. It wore a belt of grenades and used a club in combat.
