Special Abilities:

Extremophiles: Mustafarians are extremely resistant to heat, gaining +3D to resist the effects of heat. They also have very little water in their body due to their normal environment, and require only half the drinking water of other species. While they feel cold in normal or frigid environments, they suffer from no disadvantage for operating in those conditions.

Story Factors:

Egocentric: Mustafarians tend to not think of the consequences of their actions on other people, looking for only a personal advantage. This has led to them plundering the environment of their homeworld which may have dire consequences in the future for their decendants, but also carries over to their personal and business dealings.

Equipment: Mustafarian Blaster Rifle (4D+2 Damage), Breath Mask, Armoured Suit (2D Vs Physical Damage, 1D vs Energy Damage, 3D vs Heat Damage, -1D to Dexterity)

Force Sensitive: No

Force Points: 2
Dark Side Points: 0
Character Points: 6

Description: Zzzs was a Southern Mustafarian member of Father Kkkt's clan on the planet Mustafar. In 14 BBY, Zzzs and Kkkt saw the arrival of Darth Vader's ship on the planet. When Vader began building a structure to channel the Force, it caused multiple lava storms to erupt all over the planet, which Kkkt tried to hold off to protect the clan. After the fifth storm, where Zzzs gathered the clan's people for Kkkt, the clan leader explained to his comrade that they must rally the other clans to destroy the structure.

Biography

Zzzs was a Southern Mustafarian who lived on the lava planet Mustafar. They were part of a clan led by Father Kkkt, a Force-sensitive Mustafarian.[2] In 14 BBY,[3] the entire clan witnessed[4] the arrival of the Sith Lord Darth Vader's ship on Mustafar. As the ship flew across the sky, it set afire due to entering the planet's atmosphere without shields. When Zzzs asked Kkkt what it was, the clan leader claimed it was an omen and examined the falling object through a ring of lava he had manipulated using the Force.[1]

The vessel landed in the[1] Gahenn Plains, where Vader eventually began building a structure with the help of the spirit of the Sith Momin. The structure was meant to channel the Force energies from a dark side locus on Mustafar to open the door to another realm. As each design kept failing, lava storms erupted all over the planet, which affected the resident Mustafarians. Kkkt protected his people from the bursting lava as the storms became more frequent and worse.[2]

When the fifth storm came, Kkkt had Zzzs gather the other clan members and calm them while the clan leader protected them. After the storm ended, Kkkt asked them if the others in the clan were safe. Zzzs confirmed that the others were alive thanks to him. Kkkt then asserted that the problem had to be stopped, revealing to Zzzs that the other clanholds he was in contact with were having the same issue. The clan leader further told his comrade that it was time for the clans to come together and destroy the structure being built in the Gahenn Plains. Kkkt led a force of many Mustafarians in an assault on the structure[2] in 12 BBY,[5] but their attack ultimately failed and the clan leader and his forces perished.[6]

Equipment

Like other Mustafarians, Zzzs wore gray armor and a breath mask[1] as protection against Mustafar's heat.[7]
