Description: Captain Jeremoch Colton was a human male who served as pilot of the Alderaanian starships Tantive III and Tantive IV, corvettes used by Senator Bail Organa of the House of Organa. He was an extraordinary pilot and served as somewhat of a mentor to Captain Raymus Antilles, the commander of the two vessels.

In 19 BBY, Colton piloted the Tantive III on the planet Coruscant during the final days of the Clone Wars. Organa used the ship to aid his Jedi friends Grand Master Yoda and Master Obi-Wan Kenobi after Order 66. While the trio were on board, Colton informed Organa that Vice Chair Mas Amedda had sent him a message.

Biography

Jeremoch Colton held the rank of captain^[3] during the Clone Wars and had a long record of service to the royal family of the^[2] planet Alderaan, the House of Organa.^[4] He served as pilot of the^[1] Alderaanian CR70 corvette Tantive III^[4] and the^[2] CR90 corvette^[5] Tantive IV,^[2] vessels belonging to the family. Both corvettes were commanded by Captain Raymus Antilles and were used by Bail Organa,^[4] Viceroy of Alderaan and Senator for the world in the Galactic Senate of the Galactic Republic.^[6] In 19 BBY,^[7] the Tantive III was on the Republic's capital world of Coruscant during the events of Order 66, in which the forces of the Republic turned on their allies in the Jedi Order. Keen to help some of the surviving Jedi, Organa had the Tantive III leave Coruscant in order to rescue Grand Master Yoda and Master Obi-Wan Kenobi.^[1]

Upon returning to Coruscant, Organa and the two Jedi were in the vessel's cockpit with Colton and his co-pilot when a message from the office of Supreme Chancellor Sheev Palpatine reached the ship. Colton informed Organa of the message and, on the viceroy's orders, patched through Vice Chair Mas Amedda, who informed Organa of a special session being held in the Senate. Once the message ended, Organa and the Jedi discussed the possibility of the session being a trap but decided that it was likely authentic. As such, it presented a good opportunity for the Jedi to infiltrate the fallen Jedi Temple and alter a beacon being used to lure Jedi to their deaths. Colton then piloted the Tantive III to the Galactic Senate Building so that Organa could attend the session. After the session and the Jedi's successful mission, the Tantive III left Coruscant again and carried Organa and Yoda to the Polis Massa asteroid field.^[1]
