Planets D6 / Eiram

Name: Eiram
Region: Outer Rim Territories, Galactic Frontier
System: Eiram system
Suns: 1
Class: Terrestrial
Atmosphere: Breathable
Points of interest: Eiram's northernmost continent, Eiram's southeastern continent, Eiramian water purification site
Native species: Human Government: Monarchy
Demonym: Eiramian
Major cities: Barraza
Affiliation: Galactic Republic

Description: Eiram was a terrestrial planet located in the Eiram system, alongside its twin planet E'ronoh. The two worlds sought to compete over control of the system due to its nature as a hyperspace waypoint. During the High Republic Era, Eiram was ruled by the queen regnant Dima and the queen consort Thandeka. Thandeka was kidnapped by the Directorate, along with Monarch Cassel of E'ronoh, leading to the Eiram–E'ronoh crisis. As the Jedi's mission continued, Eiram along with E'ronoh, offered a ransom to the Directorate and started to investigate the kidnappings on their own. After the crisis came to an end, Eiram and E'ronoh's relationship rapidly improved, and they warmed to the Republic, allowing the Starlight Beacon to be built in their territory.

Places of Interest
Barraza
Barraza was the largest coastal city in size aswell as in population on the planet of Eiram. It was located on the northernmost continent. The city was surrounded by rocky terrain which consisted of cliffs and crevasses.

History
In 230 BBY Barazza was in danger of being hit by the crashing lower half of Starlight Beacon. Because of this impeding danger many of its inhabitants chose to flee the city which caused huge traffic jams and several crashes.

Even though the city narrowly avoided obliteration by the efforts of Jedi Master Stellan Gios, it had not escaped the station's crash unscathed. Despite the energy shielding Barazza posessed, massive waves that were caused by Starlight's fall flooded buildings on the shoreline and left the streets littered with debris and other scattered objects. Even though a major part of Barraza's population managed to get to safety before the waves struck, some of those who could not or did not want to escape perished.

Erasmus Capital City
Erasmus Capital City was the capital city of the planet Eiram.

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.